

Taylor Anthony

Taylor Anthony is a 4th year Bachelor of Science Psychology Honours student at Memorial University.

Her keen interest in eating disorders is clearly demonstrated in both her volunteer and her education experiences to date. As CHANAL lead of the I Love Me Campaign, Taylor oversees events that promote mental health education including many topics related to eating disorders. As part of her honour's thesis Taylor is investigating the relationship between social media use and eating disorders. Upon graduation Taylor hopes to pursue graduate studies and one day become a clinical psychologist. She hopes to continue to study the topic of eating disorders and work with eating disorder clients.

Meghan Waterman

Megan Waterman has completed a Bachelor of Art, majoring in Psychology (2021) and is currently enrolled in fast-track Bachelor of Social Work at Memorial University. Megan has had a personal interest in studying eating disorders throughout her entire academic career. While dealing with her own cancer diagnosis, Meghan saw signs of a negative relationship between eating habits and a cancer diagnosis, particularly in young adults. She completed her honours thesis on this subject and was honoured to present her findings at the Canadian Association of Psychosocial Oncology. Meghan spent last fall at the Eating Disorder Inpatient Program (EDIP) as a student social worker. As a result, her interest in eating disorders has increased and she plans to continue to study eating disorders and work directly with clients during her career.
